Breathtaking San Andrés Inn, La Cumbre, Córdoba

Over the mountain ranges that surround "La Cumbre," Posada San Andres is located. Its value as architectural and cultural heritage makes it part of Sierras Cordobesas' history. There is a large garden of two hectares with an elegant design and a vast majority of perennial species, and a 5 hectares native forest which create a unique nature space. There are centuries-old trees and exotic fruit trees. In addition, it features a swimming pool area, solarium and a multipurpose room. As it is at the foot of the mountain ranges, it allows to enjoy unimaginable views.

"La Casona," built in 1930, retains stone walls and original colonial roofs. Its interiors were restored while maintaining the architectural style and incorporating contemporary comfort features. It has two floors: on the first floor there is a living-room, a dining-room, a garden/a winter dining-room, two bathrooms, a kitchen, a study, a children's playroom, a staff bathroom, a storage area, and a laundry area; a two-room apartment and a bathroom. On the upper floor there is a distribution hall and four bedrooms with private bathroom. Additionally, it features a basement which has three bedrooms, a full bathroom, a boiler area and a storeroom.

A few meters away from "La Casona," "Casa de las Flores" is located. Two-storied, it was built in 1998 and has equipped suites and apartments. On the first floor, there is an entrance distribution hall with arcades to two apartments for up to five people, each of them with a kitchen and a private bathroom. On the upper floor there is a glazed distribution hall facing the mountain ranges; there is an apartment for up to 3 or 4 people with a kitchen a three bedrooms double/triple, all of them equipped with kitchenette and balcony.

On the same property, "Casa de la Montaña" is located, 100 meters away from the main house "La Casona." It has three bedrooms, three bathrooms, common areas, a fully equipped kitchen, a dining-room, a
